The Challenge

Consilient had been using Microsoft Excel spreadsheets to track time manually, but found it to be prone to errors and time consuming. The company needed a time accounting platform that would automate time data collection and generate the necessary reports.

The Journyx Solution

Consilient was able to test out the features and usability of Journyx Timesheet through its 10-user free trial. Once it became clear that the transition between systems had been successful and easy, Consilient made its decision. Now, with close to sixty users, the company has seen positive results in time tracking and project management. Because users have an effective way to present accurate time spent on their projects, Consilient has been able to evaluate the time spent by employees on each aspect of past projects, which has proven invaluable in estimating ongoing project costs. Since rolling out Journyx Timesheet, Consilient has continuously completed projects on time and on budget.

“Journyx Timesheet has been useful to streamline the time entry and reporting process,” says Dwayne Bennett, Technology Director of Consilient Technologies. “It saves resource time and effort for those entering time and generating the reports.”
